The English language consists of about 33,000 words, yet when a man is pulling on a tight boot or waiting for his wife to dress for church, he nearly always invents a few extra words to express his feelings.—[Philadelphia Call].

Since the Ohio Legislature has gone into the investigating business, why wouldn't it be a good idea for it to look into the election of a number of its own members? It would be interesting to know how many of the members "bought" their seats with Sherman's money.

The skating rink where once all was noise and gaiety is now but a silent and temporary monument of man's love for the "almighty dollar," and the inconstancy of his nature. Those who were once devotees of the rink and the roller have forsaken their "idol" and sought a new "love."

An exchange says: "In Egypt they have an original way of avenging an insult and restoring self respect. If a dragoon kicks a camel-driver the camel-driver does not resent it, but thwacks the donkey-boy, and the donkey-boy beats the donkey to restore his sense of self-respect, and the donkey kicks a dog, and then the fracs is settled."

Mr. JOHN W. ELLIOTT, for a long time a prominent citizen and merchant of Germania, died very suddenly last Wednesday night. He had been in bad health for some time, but seemed more cheerful than usual when he retired. He got up about midnight and took a seat near the fire. A few moments afterwards he was taken ill and died in a few minutes. His disease is thought to have been paralysis of the heart.

It is said that Noah's Ark is the only thing that has ever surpassed a boy's pocket in number and variety of contents.

While in the ladies waiting room of the depot last Thursday, we saw a young lady examine the contents of a small hand-sachet that will dispense the pain with either of the above mentioned repositories. She removed therefrom in successive two handkerchiefs, a comb, a tooth-brush, spool of thread, two dollars and a half in money, a railroad ticket, a letter, a lead pencil, a thimble, curl papers, a bunch of keys, a powder sachet, several hair-pins, a pair of gloves, three calling cards, small pin cushion, two postage stamps, several other articles, the use of which we reporter did now know.—[Clark County Democrat].

NEARLY as bad as the Bohemian oats swindlers of which, no doubt, most of our readers have seen account in the papers, are the peddlers who scour the country selling so-called smuggled goods. We advise our readers to steer clear of these fellows. We know several persons in our county who have been duped by these fellows into buying anywhere from $60 to $90 worth of trash, for which they gave their notes. As soon as given, these notes are sold to innocent purchasers at whatever they will fetch. But the maker of the note by law is required to pay every cent of it, as the purchaser of the note from the peddler is not supposed to know anything of the transaction. We further say that we know the goods these fellows sell are trash, and much better goods for half the money can be bought by any of our merchants. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

GOODING-PARRY.

A Brilliant Wedding at Mayslick.

The Baptist Church in Mayslick was literally a haven of loveliness on the 20th inst. The master of ceremonies had spread a carpet from the church door to the pavement, and the isles and altar floor were covered with white linen. The stained glass windows admitted a dim and variegated light, the handsome auditorium was comfortably warmed and was quite parlor-like. The lame association of the very elite of Mason's society was in honor of the marriage of Miss Sadie Mitchell, daughter of Dr. H. L. Parry, and Lieut. A. E. P., son of Hon. F. Gooding.

The coming of the bridal party was made known by the playing of bridal songs and Mendelssohn's wedding march by Professor Frost. The bride passed down the left aisle with her maid of honor Miss Alice LaRue, while the groom and his best man, Robert Lee Fox, went down the right aisle meeting in front of the altar, where Rev. A. M. Vardene performed the marriage rite in a most eloquent and impressive manner, mingling the flowers of rhetoric with the law and the gospel.

Aiding in the arrangement of the ceremonial were the ushers, Messrs. Sanford Roff, Thomas Hopper, James Owens and Richard Hopper. The party made a graceful and imposing group on either side of the happy couple, in their dark blue frock coats, light neckties, light trousers, tan-colored gloves and button-hole bouquets of Marshal Neil rose-buds.

The bride is a sparkling brunette of medium height, with a well-rounded and neatly profiled figure, a face of the oval type, with a crown of black hair that falls like a waterfall, and eyes like starlight of the soft midnight, so darkly beautiful, so deeply bright.

The bride wore an elegant robe en train of pure white silk, the front of the skirt elaborately trimmed with brocade velvet. A lacey veil of tulle was fastened to the hair with a cluster of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of Marshal Neil rose-buds. Miss LaRue, the bride's maid, was in white, the toilet differing only in simplicity. It was indeed a beautiful scene and she added much to the beauty of the picture.

To the two hundred and seventy-five invitations extended to the affair there were few regrets received.

Mr. and Mrs. Gooding were the recipients of numerous articles of silver, crystal, china, gold, linen, paper and bijouterie of novel designs, friends at other points tying with those here in bestowing souvenirs of friendship and affection.

The reception which followed the ceremony, after a half an hours' interval, at the hospitable home of the bride's father was a most enjoyable occasion, especially the wedding breakfast, which was served to the immediate relatives, in a style peculiar to the accomplished hostess, Miss Lizzie Parry.

At 1 o'clock the newly wedded couple bade adieu to home and friends for a bridal tour to the sunny South, and as the carriage was leaving kindly friends threw tiny slippers and handfuls of rice at the departing loved ones, symbolizing good luck—plenty!

What Do the Druggists Say?

They know what the people call for, and they hear what their patrons say as to whether the medicines they buy work well or not. Martell & Johnson, Rush City, Minn., say, "Brown's Iron Bitters gives entire satisfaction to our customers."

Klinkhamer & Co., Jordan, Minn., say, "We sell more Brown's Iron Bitters than all other bitters combined." L. E. Haack & Son, Winona, Minn., say, "All our customers speak highly of Brown's Iron Bitters." A. C. Whitman, Jackson, Minn., says, "Brown's Iron Bitters is giving good satisfaction to purchasers." Down the Other Side of the River.

The Cincinnati Enquirer of the 22nd inst. says: "It was learned yesterday that Mr. C. P. Huntington had in serious contemplation the changing of his plans for getting into Cincinnati, and that instead of building the Maysville and Big Sandy Road that he would likely bridge the river at Ashland and come down the Ohio side of the river, getting into the city over the tracks of one of the roads going out of the city through Millcreek Valley. This scheme would most likely mean the purchase of the Cincinnati and Eastern and its extension across the country to a connection with one of the roads coming into the city at the West End."

The damage caused by the breaking of the gorge at Parkersburg is heavier than was first stated. The Ark and ten loaded barges were cut down. The Belle Meade lost two loaded barges and the Hawk lost two of her barges. The Ark was valued at $18,000. No insurance.

THE NEWBURG DISASTER.

Working at the Rescue of the Doomed
Thirty-seven Miners.

NEWBURG, W. Va., Jan. 23.—The work of rescue is being steadily pushed at the scene of the mine disaster, but up to noon no bodies had been recovered. It is the prevailing opinion that the entire thirty-seven men are dead, although a few miners express the hope that some of them may have escaped the effects of the explosion and reached a place free from the fatal black damp which always follows an explosion of this kind. The scenes about the mouth of the mine are heartrending.

Fatal Explosion.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 23.—A terrible boiler explosion occurred in the distillery of Fairbanks & Dinsmore at Terre Haute. Two men, Frank McNeils and George Ottman, were instantly killed, and their bodies frightfully mangled. Five other men employed in the distillery were seriously injured. The engine house is a complete wreck.
